

Ask anyone that has ever built a house, and they will tell you how stressful it is. When you are told that your contractor has been embezzling money on top of it, it's almost unbearable.

That's what happened to me, and thankfully, I was referred to Myles F. Corcoran Construction Consulting (MFC) for help. They stood by me, read through my current contract for weaknesses, systematically interviewed each sub-contractor and took statements. As part of their service they inspected my house which was 90% done at the time, and were quick to find areas that could potentially leak. They interfaced with the subs to get these areas fixed.

Lastly, MFC educated me on the warranties I have from each sub-contractor and drew up an exiting contract clarifying my contractor's responsibilities.

Overall, MFC helped me recover over $100,000 in 3½ months—from start to finish. I do not know anyone that has had this type of recovery when they opt to go through the court system.

For peace of mind, I highly recommend Myles F. Corcoran Construction Consulting.
